

1. Guidelines

The Irish Jurist publishes two volumes a year. The deadlines for submission are December 31 and August 31.

Longer Articles

Material intended for publication may be submitted by e-mail to:

Professor Ian O'Donnell, Dr Kevin Costello and Professor Niamh Howlin
Editors
Irish Jurist
UCD Sutherland School of Law
University College Dublin
Belfield
Dublin 4
IRELAND
editor@irishjurist.com

Material intended for publication may also be submitted by using the article submission button on the Irish Jurist website. The button prepares an e-mail to the editors; authors should attach the manuscript and any covering material before sending.

All submissions should be by way of an attachment in an e-mail to the above address, preferably in Microsoft Word.

Longer Articles

While the journal does not have a definitive word limit for submission of research articles, it does have an advisory limit of 8000-10,000 words (inclusive of footnotes) for longer articles.

Short Articles

Submissions for the Short Articles section should be approximately 4000-5000 words (inclusive of footnotes).

Submissions for the shorter articles section are welcome from legal practitioners and academics on any area of law. Early submission is encouraged and may increase the prospect of securing publication.

This section is suitable for material such as significant judicial decisions, legislation, and reports which may be the subject of further research in the future but which is of sufficient general interest in its current form to merit publication. This will typically apply to articles, the purpose of which is to propose an idea, to highlight the potential implications of a recent decision or development, or to provoke further discussion of an issue.

Material intended for this section may be submitted by e-mail to:

Professor Niamh Howlin
Shorter Articles Editor
UCD Sutherland School of Law
University College Dublin
Belfield
Dublin 4
IRELAND
shortarticles@irishjurist.com

Material intended for this section may also be submitted by using the shorter article submission button on the Irish Jurist website. The button prepares an e-mail to the Shorter Articles editor; authors should attach the manuscript and any covering material before sending.

Book Reviews

Publishers are invited to send books for review to the book review editor:

Dr Kevin Costello
Book Review Editor
UCD Sutherland School of Law
University College Dublin
Belfield
Dublin 4
IRELAND
bookreviews@irishjurist.com

Author Information

A covering letter should accompany the submission and should include the author's contact details, title, institutional affiliation, and profession.

Abstracts and Keywords

Articles should be accompanied by an abstract and keywords. In the case of abstracts they should not exceed 150 words and in the case of keywords not more than 10.

Formatting

Manuscripts should be submitted in their final form and be ready to publish. They should be double-spaced and the pages numbered. They should comply with the Round Hall Style Guide. The following should not be used:

- tracked changes
- headers and footers
- underlining
- locked capital letters
- formatting commands
- tabbing

All submissions will be acknowledged by the editor upon receipt.

A decision on whether to publish a submission will be made by the editorial board normally within two months of receiving it.

The editorial board will endeavour to have the editorial and peer review process for publication fully completed within four months.

An author who wishes to withdraw a submission should notify the editor.

Authors will be notified by e-mail when the proofs of their submissions are available.

Proofs can be downloaded in PDF format.

Publication Policy

Manuscripts submitted for publication must not have been previously published elsewhere.

While the Jurist does not have an exclusive submissions policy authors should indicate whether their submissions are being simultaneously considered for publication by other journals or publishers. In the event that a submission has been accepted for publication elsewhere it will not be considered by the Jurist.

All submissions must meet the "Duties of Authors" standards required by the Thomson Reuters Publication Ethics and Malpractice Statement, available at <https://irishjurist.com/Ethics.html>

Review

Submissions are referred by the editor to the Jurist's editorial board for a determination on whether they should or should not be published.

If the decision is made to publish the editorial board undertakes the task of editing the submission.

The editorial process includes an assessment by at least one expert referee.

The refereeing dimension is conducted on an anonymous basis.

The views of the editorial board and the external assessor will be conveyed by the editor to authors.

Proofs

Prior to publication authors will be sent the proofs of their articles for review. This will provide an opportunity to make any final amendments or corrections. In order to meet publication deadlines this review process should be completed promptly and if possible within 14 days.

Publication.

Upon publication authors will be supplied with a copy of their articles in pdf format.
